

Matthias Pinkert (36)

„I want to make a lasting contribution for all mankind.“

Matthias Pinkert is an out-of-the-box thinker and a visionary. His creative work goes far beyond critical reflection of operation processes and structural elaboration of concepts and products. He considers the interaction of mankind with the probably most sensual medium light to be an interaction with life itself or rather a preoccupation with oneself.

Matthias Pinkert began his designing career in 1992 as a carpenter at Deutsche Werkstätten Hellerau GmbH in Dresden. He soon discovered his extraordinary sense for design, quality and human desideratum.

The design specialist training as well as his degree program in product design (M.Sc. equivalent) at the Hochschule für Technik und Wirtschaft Dresden allowed him to change over to the fascinating other side of the product development process

As designer and director of the dreipuls GmbH, Pinkert unfolds his sense for fine shapes, openly reacts on market impulses and, last but not least, enjoys following his calling even if it means to take certain risks.
